Health Promotion Program is Catalyst for Change

By Naomi Chavez
Acting Director, Aging & Independence Services

When Diana Gribble, 69, attended the first Healthier Living with Chronic Pain workshop at Park De La Cruz Community Center in the City Heights neighborhood of San Diego, she was eager to learn about proven methods and techniques for managing chronic pain. Diana was not used to sitting on the sidelines. She had committed 35 years of her life to making a difference in the lives of children and youth. She served as a teacher’s assistant, substitute teacher, and foster grandparent volunteer, roles that required physical and emotional energy. However, as her chronic pain worsened, it became increasingly difficult to find the energy to complete even everyday tasks at home, such as washing dishes and vacuuming.

“I’ve always had lower back issues, but then I started to develop pain and neuropathy in my feet due to my diabetes,” says Diana. Some of her pain has also been attributable to falls. At one point in her health journey, her pain became so debilitating and overwhelming that she even considered euthanasia. “I had immense pain in my whole body. I wasn’t depressed, I just didn’t want to live a life of pain anymore,” Diana explains.

One afternoon, her neighbor shared his recipe for an herbal tea that ultimately provided some relief of her aches and pains. Diana began wondering if there were other solutions or strategies that could help her in the day-to-day management of her chronic pain. This was the beginning of her quest for knowledge, information, and understanding that led her to the Chronic Pain Self-Management Program.

The County of San Diego’s Aging & Independence Services (AIS) has been implementing the Self-Management Resource Center’s programs, known locally as “Healthier Living,” for over 10 years. The programs are facilitated by trained peer leaders and staff who have a chronic health condition themselves or know someone whose life has been affected by one.

Diana decided to enroll in the Healthier Living with Chronic Pain program after experiencing pain flare-ups in her fingers. “Staff at the Center told me about the program, and I saw it as a huge opportunity because I wanted to learn more about chronic pain and the tools to help manage it,” says Diana. Over the course of six weeks, participants learned techniques to deal with symptoms of chronic pain, such as fatigue, sleeplessness, stress, and emotional problems such as depression, anger, fear, and frustration, with an emphasis on cognitive behavioral therapy techniques for managing pain.

In one of the workshops, peer leaders led participants in a discussion about activities they value and a brainstorming exercise where participants identified solutions for how to continue these activities while living with chronic pain. For Diana, cooking has always been an activity she values greatly. “I love cooking with fresh vegetables, but I have difficulty with knives. When I spend too much time cutting vegetables, I pay the price later with pain,” Diana notes. As a result of the brainstorming activity, she was able to identify solutions to try that were realistic and achievable for her, including meal prepping to avoid having to cook every day, cooking soups using frozen chopped vegetables, and pacing herself while cooking.

Diana also enjoyed learning about nutrition “on a deeper level,” including how to use food labels to make better choices at the grocery store. One of her goals during the program was to eat more meals that align with the Mediterranean diet. This diet, along with the DASH diet, is encouraged by the Chronic Pain Self-Management program. She has continued to follow the principles of the Mediterranean diet since the conclusion of the workshop, using herbs and spices to flavor food and prioritizing whole grains like quinoa, which has anti-inflammatory properties and is a good option for people with chronic pain.

In reflecting on her overall experience with the program, Diana notes that it influenced her to take ownership of managing her chronic pain, which is a main principle of the program. “So much of what I learned was a catalyst for change and moving things forward,” says Diana. “I feel more confident in knowing that there are options and alternatives to try as pain comes up, and I’m more open to trying new things to manage my pain.”

The program also helped Diana draw the connection between pain and other lifestyle factors, like stress. In thinking more critically about the root cause of her pain, she recognized that flare-ups more often occur “at the time of other life stressors,” speaking to the importance of self-care and pacing.

Diana encourages others who are living with chronic pain to be proactive in their healthcare, or what the program refers to as being an active self-manager. She explains, “Have faith and be informed. When you have knowledge, you can be confident and stand in that knowledge. You know what works and doesn’t work for you.”

Diana’s journey continues and while she still has ups and downs, she has the confidence and tools to face whatever tomorrow may bring. Visit www.healthierlivingsd.org for information on Healthier Living workshops or consult the blue box at the top of this page for details on workshops that will be starting soon.

VOLUNTEER OF THE QUARTER

Carole and Al Hansen are the Retired & Senior Volunteer Program’s volunteers of the quarter. Their nomination for this honor came from Laurie Switzer, Director of Volunteer Programs, USS Midway Museum.

On any given day, dozens of volunteers welcome guests to the USS Midway Museum in San Diego. Quite often Carole and Al Hansen are among them, two of the 700 plus members of the Museum’s Volunteer Corps, or about a sixth of the more than 4,000 men it took to staff the carrier in its sea going days.

The couple helps the ship come alive for visitors who tour its acres of steel, decks, and ladders. They admit that volunteering on a ship they had never seen wasn’t on their radar when they retired from the corporate world over 20 years ago.

But then their son, Leon, who was living in Australia came to visit them in San Marcos. One of the things Leon wanted to do was see the newly opened Midway Museum. “While we had supported it by becoming members in 2004, we had never been aboard. So, we toured the ship together,” Al says.

Al was very impressed with the yellow-hatted volunteer who gave the tour high up on the ship’s Island. Listening to the talk, he thought to himself, “I’d like to do that.”

A couple weeks later the Navy veteran signed up to wear a yellow hat himself and began training for the Midway’s docent team (2005). He subsequently joined Docent Class 12. Carole joined him shortly thereafter, choosing a red hat and training for the ship’s safety team. Carole is now a Safety Team Lead, a supervisory position. When asked in which branch of the military she served, she proudly answers, “Girl Scouts.” They both say, “It’s the best job I’ve ever had!”

Like all on Midway volunteer teams, Carole and Al enjoy a unique camaraderie common to people glad to be helping visitors live the ship’s adventure and honor its legacy. Thank you, Carole and Al, for serving your community and helping to keep history alive!

VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITY

Ronald McDonald House Charities of San Diego provides a “home-away-from-home” for families with children being treated for serious, often life-threatening conditions at local hospitals. They need a volunteer driver to pick up food donations from their partner stores and bring the food back to the house. The shift starts at 6:15am and is typically finished by 10:30am every Wednesday. This small act of kindness will go a long way. If you have a few hours to spare each week and are interested in this volunteer opportunity, please contact Armida Martinez at (858) 699-0508, armida.martinez@sdcounty.ca.gov.

LOVE YOUR HEART

This past February, the County of San Diego celebrated its thirteenth year of Love Your Heart. During this annual event, organizations from across the U.S. and Mexico provide free blood pressure screenings to the public and share cardiovascular health information. Here are a few steps you can take to be heart-healthy.

KNOW YOUR NUMBERS: Know your heart health numbers to screen and control for high blood pressure, high cholesterol, and diabetes. These numbers include your blood pressure, cholesterol and triglyceride levels, and glucose and A1c levels. Talk to your doctor about getting checked. Visit www.heart.org/HBP to learn more about how to “know your numbers.”

GET ACTIVE AND REDUCE STRESS: Perform moderate physical activity for at least 30 minutes five days a week (you can also conduct three 10-minute sessions daily)—and make it fun! Try organizing a walking club with your friends and family. Get outside and enjoy the many beautiful trails and parks we have in San Diego County. Visit www.sdparks.org or call (858) 694-3030 for more information.

EAT HEART-HEALTHY FOODS: Eat fresh fruits and vegetables whenever possible – at least 5 servings each day, low-fat or non-fat dairy, and foods high in fiber. Avoid foods high in sodium, saturated and trans fats, and sugar. Visit www.heart.org/nutrition for healthy eating ideas.

AVOID TOBACCO: If you are a smoker, get support to help you quit! Call the California Smokers Helpline at (800) NO BUTTS (800-662-8887) or visit www.smokefreesandiego.org.

TOOL TO LOCATE QUALITY ASSISTED LIVING

Accepting that a loved one can no longer be safely cared for at home can be difficult. For those who are looking to identify quality assisted living facilities, Choose Well may be able to help. Choose Well is a free, innovative, web-based tool sponsored by the County of San Diego that helps older adults and their families make informed decisions when selecting assisted living facilities. Visit <https://ChooseWellSanDiego.org> to discover specially evaluated assisted living facilities that have voluntarily agreed to be scored on 11 measures of quality.

CARE MANAGEMENT: MULTIPURPOSE SENIOR SERVICE PROGRAM

Sometimes staying independent in one's home means getting help. That extra help with bill paying, shopping, laundry, and other tasks can keep someone from needing to live in a nursing home. If you or a loved one are age 65+, eligible for Medi-Cal, and need assistance to continue living safely at home, consider applying for the Multipurpose Senior Services Program (MSSP). MSSP care managers work with the client, family members, and medical team to find and coordinate services in the home. Through the timely use of services, MSSP protects frail older adults and helps them live at home for longer.

Care management services include: a comprehensive health and psychosocial assessment; care planning with the client and family; arrangement of services; coordination of care with other community agencies; some limited payment of in-home services; monthly phone contact; quarterly home visits; and ongoing monitoring/phone contacts as needed.

For more information on MSSP or to apply, contact the AIS Call Center at (800) 339-4661 M-F from 8 a.m.-5 p.m.
